 American University of Paris aspires to stimulate dialogue on how to respond to the challenges of extreme violence. Through conferences, lectures, publications and fellowships, the Center promotes innovative research, curricula and pedagogies leading to the deeper understanding of the origins, developments and consequences of collective hatred, fundamentalist ideologies, discrimination and mass crimes.

The Center is Paris' first host of the complete h v h h e h , the world largest collection of video testimonies of survivors and other witnesses of genocides and mass crimes. Initiated by film director Steven Spielberg in 1994, the Visual History Archive includes today over 54,000 testimonies - conducted in 62 countries and in 41 languages - on the Shoah, the genocides of the Armenians and of the Tusti in Rwanda, the Nanjing, Guatemalan and Cambodian massacres, on Contemporary Antisemitism and on the Central African Republic Conflict. The American University of Paris makes this important resource available to researchers, teachers, students and to the general public for the purpose of investigating and disseminating new insights into genocide and mass violence.

Par le biais de colloques, conférences, publications et bourses d'étude, le Centre promeut une recherche, une pédagogie et un enseignement innovants, capables d'apporter une meilleure compréhension des origines, du développement et des conséquences de la haine collective, des idéologies fondamentalistes, des discriminations et des crimes de masse.

Le Centre est la première institution parisienne à détenir l'intégralité de la h v h h h , la plus vaste collection de témoignages vidéo de rescapés et autres témoins de génocides et crimes de masse. Initiée par le réalisateur Steven Spielberg en 1994, la Visual History Archive comprend aujourd'hui plus de 54 000 témoignages - enregistrés dans 62 pays, et en 41 langues - sur la Shoah, les génocides des Arméniens et des Tutsi au Rwanda, les massacres de Nankin, du Guatemala et du Cambodge, l'antisémitisme contemporain et le conflit en République Centrafricaine. L'American University of Paris met cette source à la disposition des chercheurs, enseignants, étudiants ainsi que du grand public afin de développer et diffuser de nouvelles connaissances sur les génocides et les violences de masse.
